

Start with the problem — not the peptide.

This clinic is here to help you turn “I don’t feel right” into better questions about recovery, weight, energy, gut health, skin, sleep, and safety.

Sleep + hormones

How to use this clinic

Think of peptides and wellness tools as conversation lanes. Your goal, history, labs, and safety risks decide which lane is worth asking about.

1

Name the issue

What do you want help with most?

2

Match the lane

Recovery, metabolic, gut/skin, sleep, immune.

3

Check safety

Meds, health history, labs, provider oversight.

4

Track results

Energy, sleep, weight, pain, skin, digestion.

Your body tells the story

Energy

Sleep

Gut/Skin

Goal-first plan

Cravings

Recovery

“My gut or skin is flaring.”

Redness, irritation, digestion, inflammation.

Ask about

Gut/skin inflammation support.

Example lane

KPV is often discussed here — not usually for energy.

“My joints/tendons are beat up.”

Training pain, slow injury recovery.

Ask about

Repair + tissue recovery support.

Example lane

BPC/TB conversations with provider supervision.

“I’m tired or plateaued.”

Energy, performance, brain fog.

Ask about

Sleep, labs, thyroid, iron/B12, mitochondria.

Example lane

MOTS-c/SS-31 are energy/mitochondrial discussions.

Take the questionnaire

Scan this after the clinic. It gives plain-English discussion topics based on your goals and answers.

Simple safety rule: the right first step is often labs, medication review, and provider screening — not jumping straight to a product.
