When people usually ask about IV support

Simple, practical use cases — not miracle claims.

Hydration

After travel, heat, sweating, or feeling depleted.

Training weeks

When recovery demands are high and consistency matters.

Run-down periods

Busy weeks, poor sleep, stress, or feeling off.

Routine support

A scheduled wellness habit with provider guidance.

Ask before choosing an IV

- What is in this bag and why?
- Do my medications or conditions matter?
- How often is reasonable for my goal?
- What should I feel — and what should I not ignore?
- What is the total cost and expiration window?

Simple decision flow

Pick goal

Hydration, recovery, energy.

2

Screen

Health history + meds.

3

Choose

Provider-guided bag.

4

Track

How you feel after.

How to use the offer well

Plan IV support around heavy training blocks, travel, heat, or times you know you get depleted.

Best use: consistent recovery basics first — sleep, protein, electrolytes, training plan — then add IV support when it makes sense.
